Dear U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, WA Department of Ecology, and Cowlitz County,

I, a Washington State citizen and voter, strongly oppose the construction of a coal export terminal at Longview, WA which would transport coal on trains and ships throughout the Northwest,

Science has proven and facts show that the export of coal would destroy more jobs than it creates (>70,000 lost, 175 created), that the export and use of coal has and would continue to damage the environment for many, if not all, the animals around it for this and many generations that follow, and it is obvious that these coal export companies are more for making profit at the expense of the taxpayers and the planet.

My grandfather was part of the U.S Corps of Engineers. I respected him for his concern and action he took for the benefit of the thousands of people in his community rather than for profit-only corporations. He and I both would feel ashamed of the U.S. Corps of Engineers if they allowed a coal terminal to be build at Longview.

Sincerely,

James Paine
